But if, in spite of my persuading efforts toward conversion, a woman wiifully insists upon throwing her life away, then I receive her into my district."

HER DAUGHTER'S FUTURE.

"But I should think, Mrs. Topham," profested Mrs. X., "that for your young daughter's sake, who I understand is now in boarding school, you would give up the life you are leading." "No." was the surprising answer, "the highest ambition of my life is that when I die my daughter may continue the grand work that I am trying to do."

when I am work that I am trying to do."

"But Mrs. Topham," the churchly lady further protested, "think of the sin that would rest upon your head it your daughter should lead a life of personal shame."

"Such a thing would be impossible," was the quick reply; "my daughter will ever hold herself as innocent and pure a woman as I am myself. I have opened her eyes too wide for her ever to see anything tempting in the muddy mire of moral degradation. Indeed, she doesn't care a thing for young men now, because she believes that all men are morally bad."

Then this queen of the netherworld delivered a little enlogy of self-praise, in which she claimed for herself absolute chastity of body and purity of soul. And so eloquently did she plead her own case that her lady guest returned bone that afternoon half converted by the vanity, sophistry and hypocrisy which was cleverly concealed by a show of genial friendiness.

The story of this moral posing now so adroitly affected by Madam Londan really began about a month ago, although not until now has it reached

. TRIES TO WORK COURT.

Failing to get any response from Judge McMaster, this ever scheming simpersonator of virtue managed to secure an interview with one of the county officers who is known to be a friendly worker with the juvenile court. To him she expressed a very great desire to join forces with the juvenile court. She said she wanted to keep every girl under is years of age out of stockade life. She promised that she would assist in sending all such girls to the State Industrial school at Ogden. And she expressed an eager desire to talk with some of the juvenile court officers.

"No, stree," exclaimed one of the officers when he learned of this interview, "you don't catch me going to field London for assistance. We can first thing you know she will be posing as a moral reformer and savior of degraded girlhood. No, stree, I don't helieve in seeking the devil's help when fighting the devil's imps. Not for me!"

SEEKS RELIEF SOCIETY.

SEER'S RELEAR SOCIETY.

Still another very cleverly planned interview was secured by Belle London. In this case she sought to win the approval of a Latter-day Saint Relief society worker. She even pleaded with this lady to accept of her hospitality by visiting her for several days at her home in Ogden. But this was a lady who could not be trapped.

(Special Correspondence.)

RICHFIELD, March 14.—Sevier stake quarterly conference closed yesterday afternoon after a two days' session. The weather was ideal and a large number of saints were in attendance, especially at the Sunday services.

Elder A, W. Ivins was in attendance, as also a good representation of bishops and other state and ward authorities. Besides the timely and interesting remarks of Elder Ivins, short addresses were made by quite a number of recently returned missionaries, who gave interesting and faith promoting accounts of their missionary experience in their various fields of labor.

Sunday evening, the stake primary workers held a meeting in the tabernacle to which the general public was invited. After an interesting program had been rendered, Elder Ivins gave good counsel along the line of primary work.

The folowing were ordained high priests: Lars Thorsen, Jens Hansen, Lars P. Hansen, Richfield; Peter Hansen, Ole C. Larsen, John Larsen, Redmond; Niels' C. Jensen, Eismore; Hyrum Murphy, M. The Iowa senator's discussion today ealt principally with the provision regulating the consolidation of railroads.

Pointing out that the regulation exends to railroads alone, he declared that, in the omission of water lines, there was possibility of great abuse, and said it would be impossible to pre vent the transcontinental railroads from acquiring the water lines through the Panama canal, thus cutting out all ompetition.

ommittee. "You mean that the committee is being driven gradually to accept my position," retorted Mr. Cummins, Mr. Aldrich interpreted this state-that it seemed to be one of several ul-timatums which Senator Cummins had undertaken to lay down. Mr. Cummins disavowed any such purpose.

Senator Nelson suggested the striking out of the entire provision on railroad mergers, leaving the anti-trust law in control of such cases.

"If we adopt this section it will be folly to carry on the prosecution of the Union Pacific merger," he said.

Mr. Cummins took up the provision placing the approval or disapproval of consolidation agreements at the discretion of the proposed court of commerce, and declared it to be extraordinary and unconstitutional, because dinary and unconstitutional, because it delegated legislative authority to the court. Senator Borah inquired who was the author of the provision. "Search me," ejaculated Senator "Search me, elaculated Senator Clapp.

Mr. Cummins suggested the attorneygeneral might be the author and intimated he believed the president responsible for the original suggestion.

"It is plain," interjected Senator Nelson, "that the bill is an orphan."

Senator Elkins thought its paternity
